YOUR EMORY EDUCATION

2012–2013

Within Your Reach

WITHIN YOUR MEANS

You Can Afford an Emory Education

At Emory University, we think choosing a college should be based on fit, not finances. Your undergraduate experience should not start with limiting choices, but with expanding opportunities.

When Emory admits you as a student, it means we fundamentally believe not just in your accomplishments to date but in your potential long after you leave here. That's why we are committed to meeting 100 percent of demonstrated financial need for all accepted students. No one should have to give up goals and dreams because financial challenges stand in the way.

The fact that 68 percent of our undergraduates receive financial aid demonstrates our ongoing commitment to making an Emory education affordable to those students who have worked so hard to get here.

Take the steps necessary to be considered for need- and merit-based financial aid. And be assured that a top-notch private education is within your reach.

A Fair Assessment

Emory is committed to awarding aid based on financial need determined by a thorough review of each family's circumstances.

Average Grant or Scholarship by Family Income

This chart shows the annual average grant or scholarship in 2011–2012, by family income, for Emory College and Oxford College financial aid recipients. As you can see, even families with significantly higher incomes may be eligible for financial aid. No two families are alike, and financial circumstances can vary widely, whatever the stated income. That's why applying for aid, even if you think your family is not eligible, is a smart choice.

It's a good idea to go to <https://npc.collegeboard.org/student/app/emory> and use the net price calculator to get a clearer picture of the amount of financial aid that might be available to you.

FEES AND EXPENSES

These figures are estimated average expenses for the 2012–2013 year at Emory College of Arts and Sciences and Oxford College. Costs for each college differ, as tuition and fees support campuses with different programs and facilities. Some items are fixed costs, where students are billed for a predetermined amount. Others are variable and depend upon personal spending. Food costs are both fixed and variable because while a student is billed a defined amount for the meal plan, he or she may spend more than what's included in the meal plan.

Some expenses are not covered by financial aid including personal activities, club and organization fees, and parking. The family is asked to cover these costs. See page 6 for suggestions on how to pay for costs not covered in your financial aid package.

		EMORY COLLEGE	OXFORD COLLEGE
Tuition	This fixed charge includes 12 (or more) credit hours with a maximum of 32.	$42,400	$36,100
Fees	This amount includes the fixed athletic and activity fees. First-year students also pay a $100 orientation fee.	$580	$478
Books	This cost is variable, depending on what classes you take. The campus bookstore calculates this amount as the average expense for required books.	$1,100	$1,100
Room	Emory students living in residence halls are billed for a specific hall; Oxford students pay the same rate regardless of hall. This figure represents the average charge for a double room and includes all utilities, cable television, and a campus computer network connection. This is an average and may be more or less than your actual charges.	$7,200	$7,196
Food	This estimated food expense assumes using on-campus dining facilities.	$4,800	$3,280
Travel and Incidentals	Actual expenses will vary by student. This figure includes a modest travel allowance. Incidentals include items such as laundry, cell phone, grooming, and entertainment.	$2,100	$2,100
Total	Emory and Oxford costs vary as a result of the fact that they support campuses with different programs and facilities.	$58,180	$50,254

HOW EMORY DETERMINES Eligibility FOR FINANCIAL AID

A Fair Assessment of Your Ability to Pay

A family's entire financial portfolio, including income, assets, and other earnings will be considered for eligibility to receive financial aid. Emory is committed to awarding aid based on financial need determined by a thorough review of each family's circumstances.

In addition to the FAFSA, Emory uses the CSS PROFILE because it provides more insight into your family's financial circumstances. Information indicated on your Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) is used to determine federal aid eligibility.

The CSS PROFILE determines "institutional aid," the amount that Emory gives from university funds. The PROFILE provides information including the value of and equity in your home, sibling education fees, medical expenses, and other allowances. We review these factors to determine a financial aid package that is specific to each family's needs. Please note that the PROFILE has a $25 fee for the first school and $16 for each additional school. PROFILE fee waivers are provided by the College Board during the application process for students who do not have means to pay. For more information about PROFILE fees or the fee waiver process, contact help@cassprofile.

Total Annual Income

Emory determines a family's ability to pay by reviewing total annual income, not the adjusted gross income (AGI) alone. AGI is used for filing income taxes. Total income includes income from all sources such as child support received, voluntary pretax contributions to retirement plans, business income, etc. Allowances are made for medical and elementary/secondary tuition expenditures.

Family Status

If parents are divorced or separated, information from the custodial parent (the parent with whom the student lives) and the custodial parent's spouse (if remarried) is used to calculate the federal expected family contribution. Emory requires financial information from both biological parents and asks for noncustodial information if a student's natural/adoptive parents are separated, divorced, or were never married. We require this documentation in order to distribute limited need-based funds.

Non-custodial parents are also expected to contribute as circumstances allow using the same need analysis methodology used to determine a custodial parent's contribution. In some cases, Emory will waive the noncustodial PROFILE with the submission of the Noncustodial Parent Waiver Petition. Please visit the Office of Financial Aid's website for additional guidance.

Sample Calculations

	Emory College	Oxford College
Cost of Attendance	$58,180	$50,254
Estimated Family Contribution	$20,000	$20,000
Need Amount	$38,180	$30,254

Calculating What Your Family Can Pay

Your financial need represents the difference in your family's expected contribution and Emory's total cost of education. Your aid package will meet 100 percent of your family's demonstrated financial need. Average aid packages contain a combination of grant, loan, and work-study awards. Self-help includes work-study and loans.

Emory Average Award Package

This is the 2011–2012 average financial aid package for undergraduate Emory College, Oxford College, Goizueta Business School, and School of Nursing students who are dependents. Packages are based on a family's individual financial circumstances.

Average Need-based Grant	$33,323
Average Need-based Self-Help	$5,075
Average Total Aid	$36,807

Eligibility for Financial Aid

Financial aid awards may change as your family's financial status changes, so you need to reapply each year. Please notify the Office of Financial Aid if there is a change in family finances during the academic year. Need-based aid is also offered to dependent students at Goizueta Business School and the School of Nursing.

To be eligible for financial assistance, an applicant must be a US citizen or eligible noncitizen, and attend Emory or Oxford full time.

COVERING THE FAMILY SHARE OF EDUCATIONAL Expenses

We attempt to give as comprehensive an aid package as possible, but in many cases, there still will be costs not funded by aid, which the family is responsible for covering. Borrowing programs and payment plans can supplement income for those who don't want to pay these expenses outright. Consider the payment and supplemental funding options detailed below.

The Emory Payment Plan (EPP)

The EPP is used to pay tuition, room, and board in four equal installments per semester. There is a $60 nonrefundable fee per semester to apply for the payment plan. Some charges (i.e., fraternity or sorority dues, parking permit) are not eligible for the plan. This payment plan is not offered for the summer term.

Loans

Families can secure financing to cover education costs through lines of credit or home equity loans. The Federal Direct Parent Loan for Undergraduate Student (PLUS) and other private educational loans can be used toward tuition, fees, supplies, and variable expenses. See the financial aid website (www.emory.edu/financial_aid) for a thorough account of educational loan options. Please note that PLUS funds must be requested through the Office of Financial Aid and Private Educational Loans should be coordinated directly with the lender.

Emory Advantage

Emory Advantage is a debt relief program that makes the cost of a private college education more affordable and more predictable. The Loan Replacement Grant replaces Federal Subsidized Stafford Loans normally awarded with institutional grants. The program is intended for students whose total family income is $50,000 or less and who demonstrate a need for financial aid.

Support FOR LOW- AND MODERATE-INCOME FAMILIES

The Loan Cap Program limits total four-year, Federal Subsidized Stafford Loan debt to $15,000 for those families with total family incomes between $50,000 and $100,000 who demonstrate a need for financial aid. Students receive a standard financial aid award including federal or state aid, institutional loans or grants, and work-study. After a student has accrued a total of $15,000 in Federal Subsidized Stafford Loans, typically in the junior or senior year, Emory will provide grants to replace the Federal Subsidized Stafford Loan eligibility until degree completion. The loan cap applies to Emory borrowing and does not consider debt secured while attending another institution.

Profile of Freshmen Who Received Emory Advantage Loan Replacement Grants entering fall 2011

Single-parent households	86%
First-generation college student	41%
Median family income	$39,465

QuestBridge

Emory College is a member of a select coalition including Princeton, Yale, and Stanford Universities that partners with QuestBridge. QuestBridge identifies high-achieving, low-income high school students and connects them with competitive colleges they would like to attend. Our partnership with QuestBridge helps us reach a more diverse pool of the nation's best students and bridges the socioeconomic gap for students attending Emory.

TYPES OF NEED-BASED Financial Aid

The Emory University Office of Financial Aid offers three types of need-based financial aid: grants, loans, and campus employment. Eligibility is based on the award restrictions associated with each aid type. An award package typically includes a combination of all three; you may accept all or part of the award offered.

Grants

Grants are gifts that do not have to be repaid. Amounts and eligibility criteria vary.

Emory College Grant (ECG) and Oxford College Grant (OCG) are need-based gifts funded by Emory and Oxford Colleges.

State Grants (for Georgia residents only) include the Georgia Tuition Equalization Grant (GTEG), Hope Scholarship, and Zell Miller Scholarship. These funds are provided by the state of Georgia to all eligible residents regardless of need. To complete an application, visit www.gacollege411.org. Select Emory as the attending institution.

Federal Pell Grants are awarded to students with exceptional need; award amount is based on your federal eligibility and on the cost of education at the institution you decide to attend.

Students who are eligible for the Federal Pell Grant may receive the following:

- Federal Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant (FSEOG): available to students who demonstrate substantial need

IN FINANCIAL AID TO UNDERGRADUATES

Loans

Students may be offered low-to-moderate interest loans that must be repaid after graduation or when the student is enrolled less than half time.

Federal Perkins Loans are awarded to students with exceptional need. Funding is limited. Interest is not charged while the student is in school; a 5 percent interest rate begins to accrue when repayment starts nine months after withdrawal from school. The maximum Perkins Loan award is $4,000 annually for undergraduates.

Federal Direct Stafford Loans are low-interest loans provided by the federal government. Interest rates and annual limits are set federally. Interest rates may vary based on the type of loan and disbursement date.

Dependent	Annual Loan Limit	Interest Rate
Freshman	$5,500 ($3,500 between subsidized and unsubsidized, plus an additional $2,000 unsubsidized)	Subsidized: 3.4% for loans disbursed July 1, 2012, to June 20, 2013 Unsubsidized: 6.8% fixed
Sophomore	$6,500 ($4,500 between subsidized and unsubsidized, plus an additional $2,000 unsubsidized)
Junior or Senior	$7,500 ($5,500 between subsidized and unsubsidized, plus an additional $2,000 unsubsidized)

Employment

Employment allows students to gain valuable work experience while contributing to the cost of their education.

Federal Work-Study is student on-campus employment. Work-study awards require ten to twenty hours per week, and students are paid biweekly. The average award at Emory is $2,500 per year.

For other employment opportunities, contact the Office of Financial Aid for a listing of on- and off-campus jobs that are available to all students, regardless of need. Wage rates, hours, etc., are set between the employer and the student.

APPLYING FOR Financial Aid

Preparing Your Application: Required Forms

To apply for financial aid please provide the following forms and documentation. For a complete checklist, visit www.emory.edu/financial_aid.

College Scholarship Service (CSS) PROFILE. The information gathered on this form is used to determine a family's eligibility for institutional aid (grant money from Emory or Oxford). If applicable, also file the noncustodial application. Emory College and Oxford College have the same PROFILE code, so you only need to complete the PROFILE once for both schools. File online at www.collegeboard.com.

Free Application For Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). This form is required by every college or university in the United States that awards government aid. It is used to determine a family's eligibility for federal aid including grants, loans, and work-study. File online at www.fafsa.ed.gov. Emory College and Oxford College share a FAFSA code; therefore this application only needs to be completed once for both schools.

Parent and Student Tax Returns. Provide signed copies of your parents' 2012 federal tax return, including schedules; signed copies of your noncustodial parent's 2012 federal tax return if your biological/adoptive parents are divorced or separated; signed copies of your student 2012 federal tax return; and W-2 forms. Most financial aid documentation can be submitted through the College Board's Institutional Documentation Service (IDOC).

Reviewing Your Submissions

Once you have been admitted to Emory or Oxford and the requested tax return information, FAFSA, and PROFILE are received, your file will be reviewed by a financial aid adviser. After your eligibility is determined, you will be notified about the awards comprising your financial aid package. You can check the status of your financial aid application through your Emory OPUS account at www.opus.emory.edu.

Deadlines and Notification Dates

Students should not wait for an admission decision to apply for financial aid. It's important to submit your financial aid documents and admission applications for college simultaneously.

MERIT SCHOLARS Program

Emory College, Oxford College, and Goizueta Business School offer scholarships based on academic merit to incoming first-year students as part of the Scholars Program. Scholarships range from partial to full cost for eight semesters. Academic scholarships are administered by the Office of Admission, not the Office of Financial Aid.

Emory Scholars and Oxford Scholars

Emory and Oxford Scholars possess a range of academic, cultural, and extracurricular interests and achievements. Most Scholars have earned distinction in music, languages, science, mathematics, or other fields. They have held principal leadership offices in school, served as editors of school newspapers and yearbooks, earned distinction in the performing arts, or played significant roles in community and volunteer programs.

Scholars' Benefits

Scholars participate in a series of community service activities and summer abroad programs designed to broaden their capacity for understanding, strengthen ethical sensibilities, and deepen personal growth. In addition to a full academic scholarship, Scholars at Emory College receive priority registration and university housing (after the first year). Stipends are given to enjoy cultural experiences in Atlanta.

Goizueta Scholars Program

Goizueta Business School offers scholarships for Emory College applicants with a strong interest in business. Selection is based on superior academic credentials, extracurricular leadership, and a demonstrated passion for business-related activities.

Goizueta Scholars spend their freshman and sophomore years enrolled in Emory College and receive guaranteed admission to the business school and priority access to business classes. Scholars enroll in special business seminars, participate in leadership and professional activities, and interact with some of the most admired business executives in the world. Additionally, entering scholars are personally advised by the dean of the BBA program.

Scholars' forms and completed admission applications are due NOVEMBER 15.

Scholars Selection

Candidates for Emory and Goizueta Scholars must be nominated by the appropriate high school official (normally a high school counselor). Nomination forms are available to high school officials online at www.emory.edu/admission/scholars in the early fall, and each school may nominate up to four candidates for Emory Scholars and one for Goizueta Scholars. Students who wish to be considered for a scholarship at Oxford may nominate themselves on the application. Students can be considered for more than one program (Emory Scholars, Goizueta Scholars, and Oxford Scholars) but must apply to each separately.

OTHER FORMS OF MERIT AID

Emory and Oxford offer a number of merit scholarships and awards for students who display exceptional achievement. Emory students excel in all types of areas, not just academics. Many of our scholarships reward pursuits such as debate, performing arts, volunteerism, and leadership skills. Other scholarships are available for Emory students after they have enrolled.

In 2011–2012, more than $10 million was awarded in endowed funds, merit scholarships, and institutional non-need-based grants.

You do not need to apply for merit aid scholarships directly. By applying for the Scholars Program you are automatically considered for these awards. Scholarships for debate and music use independent applications. Visit www.emory.edu/admission/scholars for details.

Merit aid is awarded by the undergraduate schools; however, it is included in the need-based aid package. Please note that PROFILE and FAFSA are not required to apply for merit awards.

FOR MORE Information

Students are encouraged to check on the status of their financial aid applications by viewing www.opus.emory.edu. You will need to register for a network ID and password.
