Welcome to Emory University! This tour of the main undergraduate campus will introduce you to both academic and campus life highlights.

The entire Atlanta campus is 700 acres and includes three undergraduate colleges, seven graduate and professional schools, numerous research facilities, hospitals, and Lullwater Park, a nature preserve in the heart of campus.

Emory attracts talented faculty and students, creating an institution that pushes boundaries in the service of humanity. Students can participate in hands-on research, customize their majors and minors, study abroad, or participate in an internship (or two!).

Emory graduates possess broad knowledge and exceptional communication skills, making them in-demand in today’s marketplace. They are prepared to move on to graduate school or a career, and ready to make a positive impact in the world.

Asbury Circle
Every Wednesday, the Emory

community gathers in Asbury Circle for Wonderful Wednesdays where a variety of our 350+ student organizations set up tables around the circle’s perimeter for events, games, and food.

Cannon Chapel
Cannon Chapel holds weekly

interdenominational services, and contains worship, meeting, and classroom space for the more than 30 student religious groups on campus.

White Hall
White Hall is home to Emory’s auditorium-style lecture halls. Classes range from a one-on-one independent study to a lecture course with 100

students, but the median number of students in an Emory class is 18. Large lecture classes usually divide into smaller discussion groups and labs.

Atwood Chemistry Center
Atwood is designed to revolu-

tionsize the way Emory and the world

view the sciences by blurring the lines between class time and hands-on laboratory experience. Laboratories with glass windows make science more transparent and inclusive. The “Science Commons” atrium in the building is intended for students of all majors

to study in a social and collaborative environment.

Psychology and Interdisciplinary Sciences Building

The Psychology department houses a Child Studies Center, a neuroimaging

centre, and various research laboratories.

Mathematics and Science Center (MSC)
MSC houses the departments of computer science, environmental sciences,

mathematics, and physics and contains a planetarium, a telescope, office space, classrooms, laboratories, and a library.

Emory has themed housing also known as living and learning communities. Some themes include Living Green, Global Cultures, Health and Happiness, and Social Innovation.

McDonough Field

This space is used for recreational use and campus-wide events, including Relay for Life, the Taste of Emory, and intramural practices. Large campus concerts during Homecoming and Dooley’s Week are also held here. Recent performers include J. Cole, B.o.B., Wu Khubia, Kendrick Lamar, One Republic, and the Chainsmokers.

Eagle Row

Home to many of Emory’s Greek organizations, including 8 Emory Panhellenic Council Groups, 12 Interfraternity Council Groups, 8 National Pan-Hellenic Council Groups, and 6 Multicultural Greek Council Groups. Approximately 30% of Emory students participate in Greek Life. Recruitment is deferred until the second semester of a student’s first year, giving students time to get acclimated to college and campus life before deciding if they wish to become involved in Greek Life.

Volunteerism

83% of our students volunteer in Atlanta and beyond.

Woodruff P.E. Center

The WoodPEC (pronounced “wood peck”) includes basketball, tennis, and racquetball courts, three dance studios, a cardio theater, an indoor track, rock-climbing walls, an Olympic-size swimming pool, weight machines, and free weights. A soccer field, additional track, and tennis courts are located outside.

Play 4 Life provides physical fitness and wellness courses including leagues and events like flag football, basketball, soccer, ultimate Freestyle, International Festival and World Cup Tournament and much more.

Group fitness classes for students include yoga, zumba, cycling, taekwondo, hip hop, yoga, barre, Bollywood dance, and High Intensity Interval Training.

Office of International and Summer Programs (OISP)
OISP offers over 120 study abroad programs in over 40 countries. Students can spend a summer, semester, or full academic year abroad, and 95% of Emory seniors have some type of international educational experience by the time they graduate.

Woodruff Library
Named after Robert W. Woodruff, a past CEO of The Coca-Cola Company, Emory’s main library is home to print and electronic resources, classrooms, and study spaces, as well as the Matheson Reading Room, arguably one of the quietest places on campus to study. The room resembles a set from Harry Potter, with low-hanging dim lights and long dark wooden tables.

The Stuart A. Rose Library Located on the 10th floor of the Woodruff Library, Rose Library houses Emory’s special collections and historical artifacts. Some highlights include original materials from the civil rights movement, papers from Pulitzer and Nobel prize winners, and first edition books. Students can use these as documents for class research and projects.

Health Sciences Quad
Across the bridge over Eagle Row, known as the “biology bridge,” is the Health Sciences Quad. The buildings in this area are home to classes and labs for biology, human health, and public health. This quad includes two of Emory University’s schools, the Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing and Rollins School of Public Health, as well as research buildings, a library, and classrooms.

Lullwater Park
This 154-acre preserve is right on campus and is a pedestrian-only area. It includes beautiful Candler Lake, a 210-foot suspension bridge, acres of green space, and miles of walking and jogging trails. Students use the park for relaxing and exercising.

Schwartz Center for Performing Arts The Schwartz Center includes a world-class, 825-seat concert hall, a theater lab, a dance studio, a rehearsal hall, and a classroom. Arts studies include music, dance, theater studies, art history, creative writing, film and media studies. Emory hosts over 300 arts events each year.

Goizueta Business School At the end of their sophomore year, students can enter the “B-school” after completion of prerequisites. Goizueta’s BBA program includes many concentrations including accounting, finance, strategy, and management consulting, information systems and operations management, health innovation, arts management, and marketing.

Internships
96% of business students have at least one business internship before graduation.

Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing Students can enroll in a four-year Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) program where the first two years are completed at Emory or Oxford College and the second two years are completed at the School of Nursing. Another option is the Accelerated Program where students can earn a Bachelor’s degree from Emory College and then a 15-month accelerated program to earn a BSN. Emory nursing students provide more than 25,000 hours of care in underserved communities around the world.

Emory University Hospital Located in the middle of campus, Emory Hospital allows students to explore academic interests outside the classroom through volunteer, research, and shadowing opportunities. Emory students also have easy access to Children’s Healthcare of Atlanta, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), Veterans Affairs Hospital, Winship Cancer Institute, and Yerkes National Primate Research Center, all located within a mile of this campus.

Cox Hall Cox Hall is home to several important offices, student resource centers, as well as the campus food court.

1st Floor: The Cox Hall food court offers everything from tacos to sushi, sandwiches to salads, and fair-trade coffee to smoothies.

2nd Floor: The Cox Computing Center provides computers, workstations, scanners, and software for image editing and video production. Gaming consoles such as PS, Xbone, and the Wii are available for student use. Student Tech Lab offers cutting-edge technology such as virtual reality. The Cox Resident Advisors and Sophomore Advisors staff each building to help foster a diverse community, help freshman students acclimate to campus life, and provide support during this transitional year.

Undergraduate Research 56% of Emory students participate in research. Emory’s Undergraduate Research Program (URP) and Research Partners Program (RPP) promote research projects through grants, faculty-student research partnerships, research stipends, and conference travel awards during the school year and summers. Research at Emory is open to students in all disciplines and stresses hands-on, applied, and experiential learning.

Cox Hall Bridge Here, every Tuesday from 11am-3pm, Emo- ry’s Farmer’s Market features fresh local produce, organic and sustainably produced meats, bread, cheese, coffee, honey, and other artisan products.

Alumni Memorial University Center (AMUC) The AMUC houses several meeting rooms, the Harford Cinema, the Mary Gray Munroe Theater and many student organization offices including Volunteer Emory, Outdoor Emory, the Emory Wheel newspaper, and WMRE, Emory’s student-run radio station.

More offices for student organizations include:
• Office of International Student Life (ISL): Helps international students in their transition, connection, and success at Emory. The office connects students to meaningful campus life opportunities and provides programming.
• Office of Lesbian/Gay/Bisexual/Transgender (LGBT) Engagement: Engages the community in the creation of a safe and affirming campus while supporting the development of all gender and sexual identities. Safe Space training helps increase campus awareness, and students lead weekly discussion groups and advise LGBT and ally students organizations.
• The Office for Racial and Cultural Engagement (RACE): Offers a variety of programming and events such as discussion groups, dialogue dinners, art exhibits, and an annual summit on race. The office is driven by an enduring commitment to building inclusive and racially just communities.

Athletics at Emory 80% of Emory students participate in varsity, club, or intramural sports. Emory fields 18 intercollegiate athletic teams and competes in the NCAA Division III University Athletic Association.

• Centra Latino: Centro Latino is a space open to all Emory students dedicated to the support of Latinx communities on campus.
• Emory Student Black Union (ESBU): ESBU is open to all Emory students and is committed to ensuring inclusive, equitable, and just environments. This space offers educational and social programming, knowledge sharing, and celebrates the vibrancy of Emory’s Black communities.

Campus Life Center The Campus Life Center (CLC) is a major construction project expected for completion in summer 2019. Plans include a ballroom space accommodating 1,600 people, lounge spaces, large event spaces, and meeting rooms, and the new dining hall.

Offices slated to move into the new CLC include Student Involvement, Leadership, and Transitions, Belonging and Community Justice, Civic and Community Engagement, Social Justice Education, Sorority and Fraternity Life, University Center, and Student Government Finance.

Semi-Permanent Dining Hall Affectionately called the DUCling (pronounced “duck-ling”), it’s the temporary dining facility while the CLC is under construction. It offers all-you-can-eat dining during the academic year and serves dinner seven days a week. There are also a few meatless options.

Play 4 Life provides physical fitness and wellness courses including free lunches and events like flag football, basketball, soccer, ultimate Frisbee, International Festival and World Cup Tournament and much more. Group fitness classes for students include yoga, zumba, cycling, tai kwon do, hip hop, soccer, barre, Bollywood dance, and High Intensity Interval Training.
